HBF Annual Technical Conference 2017

BUILDING QUICKER – SMARTER.

Housing targets are rising year on year and the pressure is on the industry to deliver more homes while meeting higher expectations on quality. This pressure, allied with a skills shortage, means the use of modern methods of construction (MMC) and offsite systems could be increasingly important for your business.

But where do we start as an industry? What lessons have we already learnt? How will the utilities and infrastructure cope? What digital tools do we have to deliver these aspirations?

This year's HBF Technical Conference will seek to answer these questions, taking an exciting look at the industry's present day activities and what potentially lies ahead. Key leading industry experts will be providing their insight and will be on hand to answer your questions.

Who should attend:

- Technical managers and directors
- Architects
- Building contractors
- Cost consultants
- Product manufacturers
- Specialist contractors
- Local authority managers
- Building surveyors
- Building control
- Approved inspectors
