Changes in planning policy might have slowed down in recent years but its interpretation and application certainly does not. Some issues are age old friends, those we have grown up with. Others may turn out merely to be passing acquaintances, a brief time shared together. But how can you tell which are the important issues that you should know about or care about?

By attending the HBF Annual Planning Conference you can make up your own mind. Issues such as urban design, housing delivery and local planning authority capacity will all be discussed at the Conference and you can be part of that discussion.

After all, it's always nice to catch up with old friends and to meet new ones.
