

Callum Parker

Brookbanks

Callum is an Associate Director of Hydrology based in our Cardiff office as part of the LDC team within Brookbanks, bringing specialist expertise across education, healthcare, commercial, residential and renewable energy projects.

His experience spans both targeted hydrological assessments and large, multidisciplinary schemes requiring coordinated technical input. With a strong background in hydrology and water management, Callum works closely with planning, environmental, engineering, design, project delivery, commercial and development partner teams. He focuses on delivering robust, sustainable and practical solutions that support resilient places and long-term project success.

As an EngTech MICE professional, Callum combines technical rigour with a collaborative approach, ensuring hydrology is integrated seamlessly into wider project strategies. His ability to communicate complex information clearly makes him a trusted partner for clients and colleagues alike."

Who we are

What Makes Brookbanks Special?

Integrated 'one team' model, holistic services operating full development cycle

Strategically larger proportion of senior leaders / client-side backgrounds

Unparalleled expertise in Major site planning, design and delivery

Our DNA! The way we work

LDC | Three Letters, HUGE scope!

LDC = Land, Development & Communities

Where most projects begin.

Supporting land finding, planning approvals, appeals, risk and constraint management, viability, all with deliverability in mind every step of the way.

Experts in:

Transport, Utilities, Flood Risk & Drainage, Hydrology, Environment, Sustainability, Ground Conditions, Acoustics, Air Quality, Waste Management....the list quite literally goes on!

‘We bring together planning, infrastructure, and environmental expertise to turn land into deliverable communities.’

SuDS Challenges and Solutions: Residential Developments in Wales

Published in collaboration with

Cymru | Wales

This report is available digitally and in Welsh via the HBF website.

Introduction

The Home Builders Federation is the principal trade association for the home building industry in England and Wales. HBF's membership of more than 400 companies builds most of the market sales of homes completed in England and Wales, encompassing private developers and Registered Providers. The majority of HBF's private home builder members are small or medium-sized companies.

SuDS became mandatory in Wales in 2019 following the enactment of Schedule 3 of the Flood and Water Management Act 2010. HBF worked closely with the Welsh Government both in the lead up to implementation and following. In 2023, ARUP carried out a planned review for the Welsh Government, which identified several areas in need of improvement. HBF continued to work with Welsh Government, SAB officers and other key stakeholders as an attendee of the Welsh Government-run SuDS Community of Practise (COP). Since the 2023 report, only limited progress has been made on improving the system, and SuDS remains one of the main reasons cited by homebuilders for delays in the delivery of new homes. In view of the new Welsh Government and the potential opportunity for a fresh look at the SuDS process, HBF have worked with Brookbanks to produce this report, looking at some of the key issues facing the housebuilding industry and providing solutions to help enable the successful delivery of new homes in Wales.

Image supplied by Stride Treglown

Alzheimer's Society

At Brookbanks, we're proud to be fundraising for the Alzheimer's Society throughout 2026, with a team goal of £20,000.

This cause has received an overwhelming vote of support from our employees, and for good reason. Many of us have seen first-hand the impact that Alzheimer's and dementia can have on loved ones, families, and communities. We also know that many of our clients, partners, and friends have experienced the same.

This is a cause that touches us all.

Every pound we raise will help the Alzheimer's Society continue its vital work, funding research, supporting those living with dementia, and providing advice and care for families navigating its challenges.

Throughout the year, our team will be taking on a wide range of fundraising activities to help reach (and hopefully exceed) our £20,000 target. Employees will challenge themselves through individual fundraising efforts, including skydives, running events and other personal challenges, while also coming together for team adventures such as climbing Snowdon.

Alongside these challenges, we'll be hosting a variety of fundraising events, including a charity sportive, a golf day at the Belfry, and many more opportunities for colleagues, clients, partners and friends to get involved and show their support.

Please donate if you can, share our page, and help us make a meaningful difference for the millions of people affected by Alzheimer's.

Together, we can help create a future where dementia no longer devastates lives.

Thank you for your support,

The Brookbanks Team

